

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is allowed to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by which strengthens the whole digestive system

ORDINANCE

May be Declared Illegal and Worthless.

Mayor Doyle Will Give an Opinion Thursday Morning.

The Mayor, Prosecutor T. E. Wells, and Attorney R. M. Wamaker are much in doubt as to the validity of the city of Akron making it a misdemeanor to "follow and molest females."

The doubt was brought out in the hearing of the cases against Milton Baker, George Eberly and Fred Bromley, who were arrested and charged with this offense some days ago.

All pleaded not guilty, and Attorney Wamaker, who defends the young men, moved to quash the affidavit Tuesday, claiming it was defective. A new affidavit was prepared, and Mr. Wamaker again fought the case on the ground that the ordinance is illegal.

The Mayor will give an opinion on the matter Thursday morning.

"There is no doubt that there are some illegal ordinances in operation in Akron," said the Mayor Wednesday, "and this may be one of them. The matter is very important, and should receive careful consideration."

"We prefer to say nothing at this time," said Mr. Ira M. Miller, secretary of the company. "As nothing of interest to the public was discussed."

SMITH Exalted by Fellow-Townsmen.

Was Seen at Banquet Given the Soldier.

Portsmouth, O., Aug. 20.—A monster public reception followed by a complimentary banquet was last night tendered to Gen. Jacob H. Smith, by local Grand Army men and citizens. The reception was from 8 to 9 o'clock, held in the Washington hotel. The factories closed early and thousands of workmen mingled with the business and professional men of the city, in the great throngs that shook the hand of the old warrior. Although the banquet was distinctly a stag affair, hundreds of ladies crowded about in the throng to meet Gen. Smith.

When the General was sighted a mighty cheer went up. Bands played, red fire burned, men shouted and ladies waved their handkerchiefs in mad enthusiasm. The general was forced to stop to the balcony and say a few words to quiet the throng. Long before the time for the reception to begin the hotel lobby was thronged and the streets blocked for squares. Hundreds were unable to get a glimpse of the general, although for over an hour he was kept busy shaking hands with comrades of three wars, friends of his boyhood and children of those who had known him 40 years. The banquet was the most elaborate ever attempted in Portsmouth. Capt. Creed Milstead, commander of the G. A. R. Post and Mayor of the city, welcomed Gen. Smith home to Portsmouth in rich eloquence. Gen. Smith was almost overcome with emotion when he responded. He said in part:

"Mr. Toastmaster and Gentlemen: More than 40 years ago, in answer to the call to arms of my country, I left my home and my friends to become a soldier in the union army. During every day since that time I have been and am still a soldier. Tonight my comrades in arms, my old neighbors and friends and the generation which has come upon the stage of action since, have bade me welcome home again. For this generous welcome from my comrades in arms of four wars, I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

"The duty of a soldier is to his country. He is to maintain the honor of his nation, to protect its citizens wherever he may be. We have fought to make this a united country, to wrest the great west from the borders of Indian savages and to protect the frontiersmen and their wives and children in their homes, to bring the blessings of liberty and good government to our neighboring and distant isles of the sea, to avenge the massacre in the harbor of Havana, to compel obedience to our authority in the Philippine islands and to pacify and subdue the most savage tribes of the earth. The warfare in which our troops are engaged in the Philippines differs from any in which we have ever engaged heretofore and speaking not for myself, they have all done their duty well, officers and soldiers, and deserve well of their country."

"In Luzon the tribes are different from those of Samar, the latter being peopled by savage tribes who do not recognize any rules of civilized warfare, but are treacherous and brutal to the lowest degree. Still they must be brought into subjection. For the humble part which I took I am aware that there has been much criticism, but to take criticism is part of a soldier's training. I have already had occasion to say that he must take what comes to him without complaining and let his country say whether he has acted the part of a soldier or not. My sword is still at the command of my country."

"But, my friends, let me say that through all the years of service, during which time I have been almost in all nations and seen all peoples, no place on earth has appealed to me like Portsmouth. It is the only place I could ever call home, and here in your beautiful valley, beyond which lie the noble hills of Kentucky, where I spent many of my happiest boyhood days, I expect to live, sharing with you your joys and sorrows, your prosperity and adversity."

Other toasts were responded to by Hon. J. J. Giddens, of Cincinnati; Dr. Edward Ricketts, of Cincinnati, and prominent local people. All breathed commendation for the cause of Gen. Smith and hoped that he would be reinstated. The hotel was profusely decorated with pictures of McKinley and other distinguished men, but no portrait of President Roosevelt was visible.

EMPTY

Train Crashed Into Coaches

Which Were Filled With Human Freight.

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 20.—Two persons were killed and several injured in a wreck at Belmar, N. J., about 9 o'clock last night. Richard C. DeArmond, aged 35, of Orange, N. J., and Alice Bishop, aged 8, of Rahway, N. J., are dead, and Joseph E. Toal of 120 Halliday st., Jersey City, was so badly injured that he may die. Several other persons were slightly hurt. Thousands viewed the scene of the wreck this morning.

An empty excursion train of the New York & Long Branch railroad was returning to Belmar, after having taken a load of excursionists to Point Pleasant from the baby show here, when it crashed into a Pennsylvania railroad train, standing at the Belmar station. Two rear cars of the Pennsylvania train were telescoped and the props supporting the car shed over the tracks were torn out, causing the shed to collapse, adding to the confusion.

The Bishop girl with her parents was returning to her home in Rahway. She had been lifted aboard the train by her parents who were about to follow when the collision occurred. Coroner John W. Slock, of Long Branch, is investigating the accident.

RICH.

Bank Defaulter Has Returned.

When Seeley was released from prison he went West in a mining enterprise. He is now worth $1,000,000. Seeley was a resident of Brooklyn when he was cashier of the National Shoe & Leather bank, of this city. With him a depositor named Baker was implicated, and it is said that $350,000 was stolen from the bank. The day the robbery was discovered Baker's body was found in the sound. He was accidentally drowned. Seeley was arrested and sent to prison for a long term.

HAD LOST

Heavily in Wall St. Speculations.

Robert Remington Was Almost Penniless.

New York, Aug. 20.—A number of Manhattan friends of Robert R. Remington, who committed suicide in Newport, Monday, say that his mind was unbalanced temporarily. They say that the breaking of his engagement to Miss May Van Alen, the eldest daughter of James J. Van Alen and granddaughter of Mrs. Astor, preyed on him. However, a Manhattan lawyer, who had attended to Remington's affairs, said last night that he doubted if the breaking of the engagement to Miss Van Alen was the entire cause of the suicide. He said Remington had been gambling in Wall Street, and had been a very heavy loser, and he would not be surprised to find, when the estate was settled, that Remington had little or nothing. The body will be taken to Williamsport, Pa., and buried in the family plot at that place as soon as arrangements can be made by his brother, who left this city for the scene of the tragedy this afternoon.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Whitman, who was legal adviser of Robert R. Remington, said that, so far as he knew, his client left no will. He had never heard Mr. Remington discuss the advisability of making a will, and did not think such an instrument would be found among the dead man's effects. Further than this Mr. Whitman would make no statement.

There seems to be considerable mystery as to just how Mr. Remington and Miss Van Alen became acquainted, one story to the effect that they first met on an Atlantic liner being denied. Mr. Remington, it was said today by one who appeared to know a good deal about him, did not, when he first became acquainted with the Van Alens, live in what might be called bachelor apartments. They were simply furnished rooms, well but not by any means luxuriously kept.

E. P. Remington, brother of the suicide, on his way to Newport yesterday, said he would take charge of his brother's body and that the funeral would be held on Thursday from the family home in Williamsport, Pa. Mr. Remington said he did not know until yesterday that the engagement of his brother to Miss Van Alen had been broken. Last Saturday, he said, he received a letter from his brother in which he referred to his marriage as if it were to take place in September, as was at one time announced.

"Of one thing I am certain," said Mr. Remington, "my brother did not inherit a tendency toward insanity. There has never been insanity in the family. I think Robert may have taken his life in a moment of mental aberration on account of some great private trouble that had unbalanced his mind. With regard to my brother's engagement to Miss Van Alen I know little. He met her a few years ago and some months ago he wrote me that they had become engaged. Save for some occasional and what appeared to me unreliable reports, I heard nothing to the effect that the engagement had been broken."

"When I was in New York last, at the time Robert returned from Europe, his relations with Mr. Van Alen and his family seemed most pleasing. I stayed at the Waldorf-Astoria, and Mr. Van Alen called. He was very cordial."
